

Dr. Bhaskar Ganguly, Ph.D., is a veterinarian by profession with specialization in molecular biochemistry. He has active interests in the application of bioinformatics tools for studying biological processes, particularly those involved in the pathophysiology of important diseases. Besides publishing many high-impact research papers in reputed journals, he has contributed two invited research protocols to Methods in Molecular Biology series. He is a regular reviewer for many international veterinary journals and also serves on the editorial board of Frontiers in Veterinary Sciences.